SOLONS BOOST HISSAM'S SALARY AFTER PARLIAMENTARY CLASH

Ordinance increasing the salary of the municipal court bailiff from $1,200 to $1,800 annually and rejection of a measure to boost the stipend of the employees of the water works featured the final session of the present council last night in the municipal court building.

Action was taken on the bailiff proposal after a sharp parliamentary discussion as to whether or not the ordinance was up for second or third reading. President N. P. Kerr ruled that it was on second reading, despite the fact that the minutes of council showed it to be on final passage. Motion to approve the minutes was carried by a vote of 4 to 3.

Members Goodballet, Hughes, Hayes and Farrall were recorded in the affirmative, while Kelly, Poole and Kommel cast negative ballots.

After the vote had been announced by the chair and a motion to place the ordinance on third reading, Solon Farrall declared that he was under the impression the roll call was for second reading and desired to change his stand. The chair held that it was too late and he was recorded for third reading.

President Kerr after the passage of the measure instructed the clerk to record him as ruling the ordinance had been given only two readings. He contended that when the emergency clause had been stricken from the proposal at the meeting on December 15 it should have been sent back for first reading. Clerk Shone read the minutes of the session which showed the ordinance had been placed on first reading by a vote of 5 to 2 after the emergency clause had been removed upon advice of Solicitor Frank Hoover. The same action was taken at that time on the ordinance proposing an increase in the auditor's salary, which went down to defeat when the emergency clause failed to receive a sufficient number of votes.

President Kerr refused to sign the ordinance. According to the city solicitor this will have no bearing on the validity of the measure.

Solons Farrall and Kelly spoke against the raise for the bailiff, while Hayes strongly advocated the passage of the ordinance. Farrall claimed the position was one for "an old man," while Hayes countered with the remark that the job was one that could be handled only by a young and vigorous man.

When the ordinance calling for a pay increase for the employees of the water works was brought up, it was defeated, 5 to 2. Hayes and Goodballet voted for the raise. The result of the balloting caused a sharp tilt, during which the question of "unionism" was injected. Hughes explained his action in opposing the proposal on the ground that the street employees should have been included in the list.

Service-Safety Director J. W. Moore announced that plans had been made for installing approximately 25 new arc lights in various sections, including the recently annexed territory.

Clerk G. A. Shone read the minutes of the meeting which were approved. This action was done in order to avoid holding another session before the new body meets for organization.

Remorseless Slayer Of Child Confesses He Murdered Druggist

With Bravado of Wanton Criminal Gloryfying in His Record, William Edward Hickman Tells Police of Los Angeles of Hold-up and Murder, Names Accomplice and Mentions Woman.

NEW ANGLE OF INQUIRY IS OPENED... TO CLEAR UP MARION PARKER CASE

Self-accused Kidnap and Killer Implicates Welby Hunt and Informs Authorities That he Mrs. Carrie M. Driskell, Step-grandmother of Alleged Pal, of Pharmacy and Other Jobs.

By Arthur L. Marek.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 29.—With the bravado of a wanton criminal glorying in his record, William Edward Hickman, admitted kidnaper and remorseless slayer of little Marion Parker, today confessed a second murder in his career of crime, named an accomplice and mentioned a woman.

A new angle of inquiry immediately was opened to clear up unsolved phases of the Marion Parker kidnaping and murder.

On Christmas eve, 1926, Hickman and Welby Hunt held up the Rose Hill pharmacy, 4543 Huntington Drive, Los Angeles, and the proprietor, C. Ivy Thomas, was killed when the youthful bandits "shot it out" with a policeman who was in the store, according to Hickman's confession to Under-Sheriff Eugene Biscaulz and Chief Jailer Frank Dewar.

A woman entered the investigation when Mrs. Carrie M. Driskell, step-grandmother of Hunt was brought to the sheriff's office for questioning to determine if she could shed new light on the Parker girl's kidnaping and murder.

Hickman, in his confession, according to the sheriff's office, said that he and Hunt told Mrs. Driskell of the Rose Hill pharmacy and other robberies.

Confession of the drug store murder was made voluntarily by Hickman.

Police reports showed that one of the two bandits who held up the Rose Hill pharmacy had been wounded as they fled.

Policeman Don J. Oliver, who was in the store at the time the place was shot up, had his revolver shot from his hand by a bandit's bullet. A second bullet glanced from a suspender button.

Hunt had been employed at the First National Bank of Los Angeles as a messenger until September last.

This is the same bank from which Hickman was discharged last June following his confession that he had forged checks.

HIGH SPOTS OF YOUTH'S STORY OF CHRISTMAS EVE MURDER IN 1926

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 29.—Here are the high spots of William Edward Hickman's confession that he killed a Los Angeles druggist, Christmas eve, 1926:

Q. Mr. Hickman, we desire to ask you certain questions regarding the holdup at the Rose Hill pharmacy, Dec. 24, 1926. Do you remember going into the drug store with an accomplice and holding it up?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was that accomplice?

A. A fellow by the name of Welby Hunt.

Q. Tell us how you happened to hold up the drug store.

A. We needed money, and that afternoon we saw this place as we drove by and we said we would come back and get it that night. When we came back that night we had masks and we entered the store and told the man and the woman in there to hold up their hands and to go up toward the back. There were two or three customers in the store and we made them put up their hands and made all these people go toward the back.

There were two doors at the back of the store, one on each side, and my partner went through the door to the right. Welby Hunt backed the druggist and his wife ahead of him and I went through the door to the left, forcing the customers inside the little room in the back. When we both got in the back we saw an officer standing in the rear and I told Welby to take his gun while I had my gun on him, but before he attempted this the officer wheeled about and in a position just opposite me started firing his gun at me and just at the same time I started firing at him and Welby started firing.

I was firing directly at the policeman as far as I knew, and I judged that Welby was firing at the policeman, although I didn't have time to watch Welby firing. When several shots had been fired, we both started to run from the store and it seemed that several shots were fired when we were running. I left the store first and Welby followed and we both ran for the car. When Welby left the store he was limping and when we got in the car he said he had been shot. I drove the car to the room in the Alto hotel.

Q. Then what happened?

A. We came in the back way and entered our apartment. I took Welby's overcoat off, his other coat, and opened his shirt to see just how he was shot. It seemed that two bullets had cut the flesh on his right shoulder.

HICKMAN WANTED TO BE MINISTER, PLAY TROMBONE AND SEE DRAMA

BY A. M. ROCHLEN.
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—He wanted to be a minister when he was younger. Yet when a minister called on him at the Pendleton jail and asked him to pray with him, he said he was no hypocrite. Later he tore up the Bible the minister gave him to read. It was a piece of acting, he admitted.

"I used to play drums in an orchestra. I tried to learn to play a slide trombone. Did not get far."

The story of the trombone is interesting. Last summer during his carnival of crime, he drove up to a music store in San Francisco and selected the trombone—$350. He told the clerk to come with him to get his father's check. In Golden Gate park he stuck a gun in the clerk's ribs and told him to go back to the store.

"Later on I broke up this instrument. Just got mad and crushed it—then threw it away in Elysian park. Trombone and Marion Parker's body—both thrown away in the same place."

Hickman uses perfume. His overcoat, dusty from thousands of miles of road driving, still smells of perfume.

He told Detectives Richard Lucas

WELLS PRESIDES Attorney Blaine H. Cochran Renders Solos.

Jesse Pugh, Rushville, Ind., humorist and chautauqua speaker, told 125 men and women at the seventh anniversary dinner celebration of the Rotary club in the dining hall of the New Travelers hotel last night.

Pugh, who first addressed members of the club two years ago, declared that when "man forgets himself and goes at his work with a pleasure he will receive the greatest material returns."

"Some of you men may be getting a lot of fun out of your job but if you get more enjoyment out of your work than I get out of mine you must be 'going some,'" Pugh said.

He was introduced by W. E. Wells, Newell pottery manufacturer and chairman of the meeting. President Martin Abbott welcomed the Rotarians and their guests.

ELKS LOSE AT SALINEVILLE

Play Foe to Tie in First Half But Trail in Second.

A last half rally led by Forward Beckwith after the teams had finished the first two periods in a dead heat, was responsible for Salineville's 33-29 victory over the Wellsville Elks' county league five last night at Salineville.

The Elks played the Kiwanians to a 17-17 deadlock in the first half, the squad, as a whole, showing an improved brand of ball, but their offensive fell off in the last two periods and with it went their chances for a win.

Only three points were made by the Elks in the second half, while Tommy Cartwright's aggregation was collecting 13.

Beckwith led the scorers with 11 points from five field goals and a foul.

Todd, with seven, and Teft with eight, were the principal point producers for the locals.

The Elks are not scheduled again until Monday night when they take on the Lisbon team which also has yet to win a game.

Order Two Men Held In Death at Weirton

Prosecutor Acts Despite Coroner's Jury Verdict of "Accident" in Fatal Fall of Samuel Sackovich.

Verdict of "accidental death" was returned by a jury at an inquest conducted last night at Weirton by Coroner G. A. Arner, of Chester, in the case of Samuel Sackovich, 35, whose body was found Monday night in the yard of the home of Matt Nicksic. Seventeen witnesses testified.

Prosecuting Attorney Thomas S. Hoffman, who represented the state, after the verdict had been read, asked that Nicksic and George Chaplitt, the latter a guest at the party in the Nicksic home, be held for further investigation. Both were committed to jail by the coroner.

Hoffman said that he believed all the circumstances in connection with the cause of death had not been determined. He has directed that another postmortem be made. After the report of the physicians is received

Lost Battalion Hero Finally Lands a Job

ABRAHAM KROTOSHINSKY AND POSTMASTER J. J. KIELY (International Newsreel)

Here one day—forgotten the next! That's the old, old story—but always a new one, and it happened again to one of the most heroic figures that the World War produced—Abraham Krotoshinsky of New York.

Maybe your memory's a little poor, too, so we'll just remind you that Krotoshinsky's the soldier who wormed his way through a deadly hail of shells, machine gun bullets and gas—and saved the Lost Battalion. You remember him NOW, of course!

A few weeks ago, Krotoshinsky, gassed and disabled, found himself out of work, unable to get a job or to provide for his little ones. And he wouldn't tell prospective employers who he was, or how the nation resounded with his praises.

But friends became aware of the situation. President Coolidge was appealed to. And, as a result, Krotoshinsky now has a well-deserved berth in the New York Post Office—and his youngsters' Christmas is indeed a merry one.

he will determine his course of action. Mrs. Nicksic who had been held, was released.

Announcement of Flynn's resignation was made yesterday by J. C. Williams, general manager and vice president of the Weirton Steel company, who stated the resignation had been reluctantly accepted and that John Gold, chief metallurgist at Weirton, has been named to succeed Flynn.

In going to the Trumbull Steel company Mr. Flynn will become assistant to C. H. Elliott, vice president and general manager, and will be in charge of all operations. Mr. Elliott is also a former employee of the Weirton Steel company.

To Leave January 1. The new strip steel manager, Mr. Gold, has been chief metallurgist at Weirton for the past seven years. His promotion will mean other promotions all along the line, it was stated, but these will be announced later.

TIME EXTENSION REPORT DENIED

CHARLESTON, Dec. 29.—Emphatic denial that there would be any extension of time for automobile owners to get their 1928 licenses was coupled with a declaration that no official has any authority to grant an extension in a statement today from former Senator Harvey Marsh, member of the state road commission in charge of the automobile department.

Mr. Marsh quoted from the road law declaring that registration certificates and the right to use registration plates "shall expire at midnight December 31."

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

LOOKING BACKWARD One hundred and twenty-first year boys at the University of Wisconsin are pursuing their studies according to the method in use in the time of Pericles. This high citizen of Athens lived 400 years before Christ. In those days there was much study and debate, but not after the manner of the modern college. The idea of this Greek method which is experimented with at the University of Wisconsin is to give young people an understanding of complicated social or political situations and create in them a desire to solve problems. The experiment may succeed or fail. At any rate it is interesting in that it looks back for ideas instead of looking for something new. And all this leads to the conclusion that sometimes the old is better than the new.

AND GOING BACK AGAIN Dr. H. Spencer Lewis, national president of an order known as the Rosicrucians, announces that 5,000 men, women, and children are going to rove to Egypt and live as the Egyptians did in 1300 B. C. They are going to discard modern tools and use the implements of that early age. They believe more happiness is to be found in a crude and primitive system of living than under modern conditions. Thousands who do not care to make such a drastic experiment but who find that the modern way of life brings more worry than peace of mind, will watch the experiment with deep interest.

COMPLICATIONS It is a question whether the new "companionate marriage" is legal. And if it is not legal, according to state laws, what then? And will it be made legal? When people wrestle with the conventional rules that have guided the civilized race for so many years they get into all sorts of complications. In the end it is entirely possible that present day conventions can be greatly improved upon. But it is a matter for slow and deliberate action.

FIERY POWER The sun, which is unbelievably hot and bright, is made up of the same chemical elements that make up the earth. But these elements are so heated that they make possible all the light and warmth and life that we have on earth. It reminds us that an ordinary human being under the light and heat of a great enthusiasm can become immensely powerful. We are all made of the same elements but we perform in accordance with the heat of the spirit.

Another Good Will Mission

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, in keeping with the Christmas spirit, today is spreading good will in the first of the Central American republics which he will visit as the unofficial ambassador of Washington. With "Viva Lindy" ringing in his ears, the pioneer Atlantic flier jumped from Mexico City to Guatemala City, Guatemala, yesterday, in the first non-stop flight between the two capitals. And he was as enthusiastically received there as he had been in the Calles nation where he paved the way for more cordial relations between the Latins and Uncle Sam.

While her famous son was continuing his unprecedented diplomatic tour, which is certain to reap dividends in the form of a better feeling between the United States and our neighbors, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, chemistry teacher in a Detroit high school, was doing her bit for increasing interest in aeronautics by convincing fellow Americans that flying is safe. Nineteen minutes after Lindy hopped for Guatemala, she was enroute home in a Ford plane, after having spent the Yuletide season in Mexico City, where she had traveled by air.

"Good will missions" are coming to be a common thing. The most ambitious of them all is to be undertaken soon by President Coolidge himself.

The occasion will be the sixth Pan-American conference which opens at Havana, Cuba, on Jan. 16. President Coolidge will leave for Havana on the 13th, crossing from Key West in a warship. With him will go Secretary of State Kellogg and other officials of the state department, together with a delegation of distinguished men headed by Charles E. Hughes. Ambassador Morrow who has been pre-eminent an exponent of good-will in Mexico will be there. Also Lindbergh, who has shown unusual talent in fostering pleasant international relations.

According to the Chicago Tribune, the president "has set out to establish a better understanding and closer community of interests between the United States and other American republics, to remove the causes of friction, to break down racial and cultural barriers and to promote joint enterprises of common benefit to the countries of the Western Hemisphere."

It is a worthy and timely undertaking, which may be of enormous value to the future welfare of the United States.

Italian Immigration

Importing Italian labor used to be a thriving business in this country. Lately it has been severely crippled by the American immigrant restriction law. Now Italy herself—meaning Mussolini—has made it almost impossible.

Formerly Italy fought for opportunity to let her overflowing population emigrate to other countries. There is now a law in Italy against emigration stricter than ours against immigration.

Italians residing in the United States may bring in from the old country only their immediate relatives—wives, husbands, parents, children or unmarried brothers and sisters. If more labor is needed here, and additional Italians are wanted, our government will have to state its requirements to the Italian government, specifying the kind of work they would be expected to do, with the wages, working hours, etc. Then the Italian government, if it was satisfied, would pick out the workmen itself and send them.

There will hardly be many Italians expatriated under such a system. The obstacles are too great.

Italy at last thinks so well of her own people that she wants to keep them. She may colonize some of her surplus in northern Africa or elsewhere, under the Italian flag. She will keep most of it, however, in Italy.

That is all right if the Fascist government, or any other regime, can provide employment for them. Italy, however, will miss the millions of dollars that have poured in, to support her old people, from her emigrants to America.

Iodine For Fishes

Iodine treatment for human beings suffering from goiter is the usual thing. In recent years it has become common to give small doses of an iodine preparation to people in what are known as "goiter areas" merely as a precaution against their contracting the disease. Often the medicine is mixed with table salt so that it will be taken regularly, in sufficient quantities, by the entire population.

Now the practice is extended to fishes. It has been found by Dr. John Guberlet of the University of Washington that eastern brook trout in the hatcheries of that state are liable to goiter, with a high mortality rate from that cause.

Accordingly, Dr. Guberlet is feeding the trout potassium iodide, and apparently the treatment is as good for them as it is for human beings.

This will be another evidence to cynical folk that people, after all, are only poor fishes.

Better Spellers

Contrary to the general opinion of parents, says Dr. Frank N. Freeman, professor of educational psychology at the University of Chicago, the present-day child is a better speller than his forefathers were.

So here is another example of being deluded by the fallacy of the "good old days." Grown-ups nearly always feel that things were better, or at least the children were better, when they were young, and probably better still when their parents and grandparents were young. "Nothing to it!" say this educator who understands mental kinks as well as scientific methods.

There's a notable difference in the way children study spelling nowadays. We used to learn to spell before we learned to read. Now our children learn to read before they learn to spell. They grasp the word as a whole and then, when they've learned to recognize it at sight, they analyze it into its sounds and letters. Grown-ups often think that's a crazy way—but it works, and may be responsible for some of the improvement.

There won't be any Happy New Year for those who usher it in with radiator alcohol.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—The annoying claque continues its noisy nuisance at the Metropolitan opera. At the slightest signal from their leader they burst into horny handed applause. No other dignified institution permits such a cheap and vulgar sop to vanity.

Members of the claque are sprinkled all over the auditorium and are paid so much a night. It is thoroughly organized business. The greatest operatic stars employ the claque, a certain indication they are not sure of themselves.

Theatrical first nights often have unusual outbursts of prolonged hand-clapping, but this generally comes from friends of the players or those with a financial interest in the production. They do not receive money for their services.

The Metropolitan has never made a determined effort to squelch the John Ironhands. It has professed displeasure once in awhile but the truth is it fears to deprive artists of their desire for such obvious self-glorification.

The claque is composed largely of foreigners who have a knowledge and love of fine music. It offers not only the opportunity to satisfy hunger for opera but to receive pay therefor. They are usually paid off nightly after the performance.

At the opening of the opera this season the claque broke out in a noisy demonstration at the entrance of a singer in one of the star roles. A loud voice in Italian reverberated over the house: "Not now, you fools, wait until the exit."

Even such a great artist as Caruso did not spurn this truckling applause. Yet it means nothing in establishing a performer. One singer who got his Metropolitan chance spent $5,000 for his opening night claque but lasted only half a season. The claque takes the edge off sincere applause.

In an exclusive restaurant private dining room where a wiggled butler announces arriving guests at the doorway there came a certain cigarette king whose name was somewhat like Staccopolisli. The butler inclined his ear, heard it, made an obsequious bow and very appropriately sneezed.

Only the rich can give big parties at these select haunts. A dinner for 50 is figured at $10 a plate. Cocktails, champagne and other liquor refreshments total another $500. The rental

Is Golf Legally a Peril?

That golf is not a "dangerous undertaking" was one of the legal defenses raised in a Glasgow court where a woman asked $1,500 damages for being hit on the left eye with a golf ball. In her complaint she stated that, with two friends, she was walking along a route which took them by a recognized right of way across the golf course. Hear a shout, she turned around and was struck by the ball, a deep wound being inflicted above her eye. The player maintained as his defense that he was neither careless nor negligent because he cried "fore" as he was about to drive at the ball. The club maintained that the lady had no right to be where she was when hit.

HANG UP SUNDAY SCHOOL RECORD

For Sunday school attendance, the family of Mrs. J. H. Collins, Fredericktown road, established what they believe to be an enviable record during 1927.

Although they live five and one-half miles from the city, seven members of the family have not missed Sunday school during the entire year. Mr. and Mrs. C. Mitchell attend the First Baptist Sunday school, while Mrs. Collins and her daughter Anna, John Guyton, Richard and Walter Collins, Jr. are enrolled in the Sunday school at the First Methodist Episcopal church. They received books for perfect attendance records at the Christmas entertainments.

inclination, or the talent for literary endeavors, a ghost would be materialized. "I can't do it," said the personage, indicating any one of the reasons mentioned. "You don't have to do it," said the editor. "Express your views to the young man—or young woman—I shall send to you. The article will be written, you will edit and revise it, and it will be as much yours as the letter you dictate to your stenographer. It will be published under your name because the public is interested in knowing what you think on this subject."

Editor's Argument Sound. And the editor's argument was not only plausible but sound. The personage's views on a given subject were of public interest, whereas the views of the person who did the writing were of little interest and even less importance. And since the personage's views were presented in language and form which he approved it was relatively of little importance whether or not he did the actual writing job. That was a matter that concerned him, the editor, and the writer, essentially, and if all three were satisfied, who should raise an objection?

Or take the case of a man whose life and experience are of widespread public interest. An editor approaches him with the suggestion that he write his memoirs. The man, however extraordinary his life, or however noteworthy his achievements in his own line, may be as helpless as a child when confronted with the task of writing a book. He says as much. The editor explains how that difficulty can be overcome, and another literary ghost flies unknown and unseen across any number of engrossing pages.

Again, who should object? The public gets an interesting human document, bona fide in all its fundamentals. The publisher is enabled to bring out a book for which he knows there is a public demand. The ghost is satisfactorily remunerated for his services; otherwise he would not have rendered them.

Then, in modern journalism, there has arisen a terrific demand for first person narratives from persons who have done headline stuff in aviation, in sports, in the movies, or on the stage, or in various other activities. Many of them, no matter how brilliant their accomplishments in their special lines, are utterly unable to do those first person narratives in writing. They may be able to relate verbally how they did this or that, and their experiences while they were doing it, but they are helpless when called upon to do their stuff via the written word.

Suffer from Pen Paralysis. They may not be tongue-tied, but they suffer from pen paralysis, so to speak. They know their own vegetables, but they don't know those that grow in the writing man's garden. And why should they? Their specialty is not writing.

The man behind the controls of an airplane does a trans-oceanic hop that is unprecedented, and the public immediately wants to be told all about it in his own words. The public may not consciously voice this demand, but editors know only too well that it is being made.

NONSENSE

The aviator is coordinated with the man behind the typewriter and the public gets what it wants. A woman swims the English Channel and everybody wants to know everything about that remarkable performance in words of her own telling. She can speak 'em, but she can't write 'em. A considerable element of the public craves to know all the emotions of a great actress, stage or screen. She can emote, but not in words of her own composition. More work for the ghosts!

Dempsy and Tunney battle for the heavyweight championship of the world. Readers of sport pages want to know all they think about it, both before and after the event. They may be writers as well as pugilists, but if they are not, that deficiency is easily remedied. A world series baseball struggle comes on, and the reading public is regaled with first person stories by practically all the notables in the baseball world, from managers, pitchers, and home-run hitters to comedians and batboys. How many of them actually wrote the stories published under the names? Ask the ghosts.

Ask men in public office, and executives of private corporations, often are called upon to make addresses which they are too busy to prepare. What happens? Their secretaries or other members of their personal staffs do the work. It is to be recorded, too, that the addresses quite often are able efforts than the men who deliver them could have prepared had they been wholly disengaged.

But as to when ghosting really began, that is a question that may be debated world without end. It is related of a noted French fiction writer that he had a staff of writers who really did most of his work, just as it is said that several modern men of letters have assistants who not only do much of their writing but a large part of their thinking. To go back a considerable period, it is not to be forgotten that certain biblical writing are not invariably accredited to those whose names carry them.

Also, there have been many people to maintain that Bacon did a bit of ghosting for Shakespeare.

DR. H. A. KELSEY TELLS OF HOLY LAND VISIT

Muskingum College Vice-president Speaks Here.

URGES GOOD WILL

Former Pastor Goes to Sebring and Carrollton.

Rev. H. A. Kelsey, vice-president and professor of Bible at Muskingum college, New Concord, discussed his visit to the Holy Land before a large audience in the First United Presbyterian church, where he was a former pastor, last night. His subject was "In the Footprints of Jesus."

Rev. Mr. Kelsey is spending his holiday vacation on a good will visit to churches of eastern Ohio. Tonight he will speak in Sebring and Friday night he will appear in Carrollton. He will return to his home on Saturday.

Rev. Mr. Kelsey went abroad in March, 1926, and returned in July. During the trip stops were made in Abyssinia and Palestine, but his remarks last night related mainly to his visit in the Holy Land and other interesting Bible scenes.

He called attention to the size of the country which is much smaller than the average man realizes, and also to the topography and degree of fertility. Special mention was made of the new movement under English capital to develop a great fertilizing plant at the Dead Sea and produce sufficient fertilizer from that ancient and supposedly barren body of water to reclaim all the barren land of Palestine.

Attention was also given to the people which go to make up a rather cosmopolitan group, but all of whom from the most ignorant nomad of the country to the highest leader of the Mohammedan faith are more or less ignorant and out of touch with world conditions. The new Jewish villages promise much in reestablishing the farming districts and the great archaeological excavations now on there are bringing to light so much of the history of the past that all Palestine like the rest of the world is on the move.

The lecture was in the form of a travelogue, going out in each direction from Jerusalem as a center and attempting to visualize the points of particular interest at the close to the fact that the interest in all this place is not chiefly to be found in the fact that all the great military campaigns of history have been carried on in that region crossing and recrossing this gateway both east and west, but that this little country has given the world its one most unique and influential character—the Christ.

DAN R. HANNA'S DAUGHTER ELOPES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—Capital society was surprised today over the hasty and romantic marriage of Charles Hanna, 16-year-old daughter of Dan R. Hanna of Cleveland, and Richard Hume, 23, son of a Washington broker.

The pair eloped to New York, secured a marriage license and returned to Washington where they were married quietly by the Rev. H. L. Schlinker in a remote section of the city. Only the bride's sister, Mrs. Stanley Carr, was taken in on the secret. She was a witness.

The bride is a granddaughter of Mark Hanna, and a niece of Mrs. McMillan.

Rotary Dinner Meet

Repeated a "fish story" and another number which made a hit with his audience here two years ago.

Pugh's Wit.

"Every organization has its annual dinners beginning with oysters and ending with nuts—after-dinner speakers," said Pugh at the beginning of his talk. "Oysters generally get a raw deal—we eat them stewed, and roast them but they haven't got back bone enough to stand up for themselves. But the oyster, who attends a banquet has the satisfaction of knowing he won't have to stand for the after-dinner speaking."

"There are 15,000 conventions in this country every year and every one of them ends with a banquet. The other day out in Illinois they gave a banquet to a man who had lived with his wife for 46 years."

"If you run into somebody you think is liable to make it hot for you just keep cool. I used to work in a bank. My boss attended the bankers' convention every year. A bankers' convention is a large body of men entirely surrounded by bond salesmen."

"Life is for service and the man who is not playing the game in that spirit is not playing according to the rules laid down by the Master Player. I frankly admit that I would like to be wealthy but I never will."

"A man may tell the truth at all other times but when he starts to tell a fish story truth and he is strangers."

Sayre's orchestra was in charge of the music for the dance which was held in the dining room after the tables had been removed following the banquet.

MOSCOW BANS SALE OF VODKA

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—The Central Executive committee today placed a ban on the manufacture, sale and transportation of Samogon—home-brewed vodka.

"Fox" Admits Killing

It was Perry M. Parker, father of the slain Marion, who as personal officer, refused to reinstate Hickman in the bank after he was paroled on the forged charges.

This action on the part of Parker led police to believe Hickman kidnapped and killed the banker's daughter for revenge.

Expect Insanity Plea.

The belief that Hickman will enter an insanity plea when arraigned today in the indictment charging him with the kidnapping and murder of little Marion Parker spurred the police and district attorney's offices in their efforts to clinch the state's case against the confessed slayer.

Just what defense, if any, Hickman will make when he is brought before Superior Judge Charles Hardy at 2 o'clock this afternoon hinges upon the decision of his attorney, Jerome Walsh, who was due to reach here from Kansas City today.

Walsh has wired authorities that no court action be taken against Hickman until he can have a talk with his client.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Traeger has given orders prohibiting anyone from interviewing Hickman in the county jail without first obtaining written permission to see the prisoner. These permits must come from District Attorney Keyes, personally.

Hint Second Leopold-Loeb Trial.

Meanwhile, the notorious young prisoner was showing first signs of interest in his probable fate. His actions indicated he has a rising hope that some way will be found by which he can escape the extreme penalty.

He made certain statements that were construed as an attempt to build a defense along the lines of insanity. He mentioned a "complex" under which he has lived since early childhood, a strange impulse to inflict bodily harm on some one.

Under the circumstances it will be no great surprise to find Attorney Walsh attempting a defense strategy such as that which saved Leopold and Loeb from the hangman's noose.

Late yesterday Dr. Cecil Reynolds, a noted psychiatrist, examined Hickman and expressed the opinion that he is sane.

Dr. Reynolds, accompanied by a member of the district attorney's office, spent an hour with Hickman. The psychiatrist's examination was made at the behest of District Attorney Keyes, who is expecting an insanity defense.

Calls for Copy of Confession.

The first indication that Hickman would alter his announced decision to plead guilty to the kidnapping and murder charges came when he requested that he be furnished a copy of his written confession.

This request was made by Hickman in a note sent from his cell to Detective Chief Herman Cline.

"Please bring my copies of the confession to the jail today. I want to read them," Hickman wrote to Cline, signing his name in full to the request—"William Edward Hickman."

Cline, however, refused to accede.

Investigate Another Murder.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—Whether William Edward Hickman was responsible for the murder of a young girl in Milwaukee, Wis., who was found strangled to death on Oct. 11, last, was being investigated here today as police delved deeper into the amazing criminal record of the confessed kidnaper and killer.

The new investigation was requested by Chief of Police Lannenhoefer of Milwaukee in a telegraph to authorities here.

REMUS FREEDOM UP TO JUDGE AND DOCTORS

Former Rum King Fights Against Asylum Trip.

RULING DEFERRED

Prisoner and His Mother Testify at Hearing.

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 29.—Whether George Remus will be permitted to go free, or committed to a state asylum for the insane, today rests with three doctors and a judge.

Late yesterday the sanity hearing in probate court, which was made necessary by the "not guilty on sole grounds of insanity" verdict returned by a jury which tried him for murdering his wife, Imogene, was concluded.

Judge William Linders, announced that he would take the case under advisement and give his decision after conferring with the three alienists who, with him, presided over the hearing.

Mrs. Mary Remus, mother of the defendant, one of the concluding witnesses, spoke in German, her testimony being given through interpreters. She declared her son had always been good to her and denied that he once struck her, while they were at the Drake hotel in Chicago.

Remus was himself placed on the stand and questioned concerning his mentality. He denied that he had ever said he was greater than Napoleon.

"In Chicago they called me the 'Napoleon of the bar.' I am not responsible for what they called me," he pointed out.

He also denied that he ever struck his mother. Opinions of a number of witnesses who testified earlier in the hearing were to the effect that while Remus might be sane it would be dangerous to permit him to go free, since he is emotionally unstable and has expressed bitterness towards Franklin Dodge, federal prohibition agent whom he accused of carrying on an affair with Mrs. Remus.

Rex, municipal librarian, now has a population of 3,741,510.

What is more important than population to a great city, Chicago has courage, power and foresight, to prepare for the 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 population that are coming.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN takes Judge Gary's place as chairman of the United States Steel board of directors. That will please stockholders. Mr. Morgan's father created the company, with the assistance of Judge Gary, James A. Farrell, and other able citizens and changed a half-billion worth of stock that Carnegie called "not even water, mere air," in stock, now worth more than $220 a share, the 40 per cent stock dividend included.

To change "thin air" to a solidly established stock worth more than a billion dollars, shows what American business can do.

MR. FILENE, of Boston, predicts, not far off, chain stores rivaling in financial importance General Motors, or United States Steel and doing a business of a billion a year. Last week in Chicago one retail store did a business of $750,000 a day. A chain of stores like that would make United States Steel seem small.

PROFESSOR DEWEY teaches philosophy to young gentlemen of Columbia university and tells Chicago the world has not lost its morality, but is changing to a new era that will be better.

That new era, to be better, must drop whisky flasks for high school children, get rid of some pink stockings that reach, visible, nearly to the waist.

Morality, in any era means self respect.

OHIO TEACHERS ELECT OFFICERS

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29.—John R. Patterson, superintendent of schools at Athens, Ohio, today was president of the Ohio State Teachers' association, following election of officers at the annual convention here yesterday.

Other officers elected were: Charles S. Meek, Toledo, member of executive committee; J. W. Whitmer, Toledo, member of auditing committee, and the following delegates to the National Educational association convention in Minneapolis next July: Helen J. Holliday, Steubenville; R. J. Kiefer, Niles; William A. Evans, Cincinnati; C. A. Argabright, Lima; Charlotte M. Swanton, Springfield, and Lucy B. Evans, Athens.

John L. Clifton, state director of education, in a speech before the convention yesterday, declared that the state, in issuing teachers' certificates, should place more emphasis on proper spirit and ability rather than the amount of advanced education which the teacher has received.

STUNTS MARK LIONS' DINNER

Ladies' Night Meet to be Held on Wednesday.

Attorney Harry Brokaw was instructed to invite a speaker of national reputation to give a lecture here under club auspices in March.

Next Wednesday will be Ladies' night, when Lions will entertain their wives and families with a "McGuffey" program of readings, recitations and impromptu talks at the call of the "teacher."

SCHLEE-BROCK FIGHT DEFERRED

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Dec. 29.—After running along the Ormond-Daytona beach for three and one half miles in an effort to take off their world endurance flight, Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, round the world fliers, were unable today to get their monoplane, "Pride of Detroit," into the air. A wooden propeller installed for the flight was said to be the reason for the plane's inability to leave the ground. It was replaced by the original steel one.

Another attempt will be made tomorrow.

Murder Suspect Returns to Ohio. NEWARK, O., Dec. 29.—Sheriff Carl Foulik and Police Chief Charles Dewitt returned here early today from Reidsville, N. C., with William Caldwell, 22, who is wanted in connection with the murder of Homer Robinson, grocer, who was killed in a hold-up here last Feb. 3.

Faces Charge of Attempted Bribery. CLEVELAND, Dec. 29.—Charged with attempted bribery of customs border patrolmen, Al Cohen, of Detroit, was free today under $5,000 bond, pending a hearing in federal court here January 5.

Cohen gave himself up to federal agents in Detroit Tuesday. Three other men were being sought on a federal warrant in connection with the alleged bribery attempt.

RULE 2-TICKET PLACE IN RACE FOR MAYORALTY

Attorney General Says to Count All Votes.

LEETONIA CASE

Primary Winner May Also File as Independent.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 29.—A candidate for mayor who was nominated at the primary election may, also, file for the same office by nominating petition and, thereby, have his name placed on the ticket of his party and upon an independent ticket as a candidate for the same office. This ruling was given today by Attorney General Edward C. Turner by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

Turner declared that, in the counting of ballots, such a mayoralty candidate is entitled to have counted the votes cast for him on each of said tickets at the November election.

The ruling was requested by Brown for the Columbiana county election board. It is said to have applied to a situation in Leetonia.

HOPE FOR DAWN CREW WANING

Mrs. Grayson and Three Aides are Believed Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Hope for the safety of Mrs. Frances Grayson and her three companions in the Dawn was at a low ebb today. Unless they are stranded in an inaccessible section of Newfoundland or Nova Scotia. They are feared to have perished.

The five destroyers searching the storm-tossed seas off Newfoundland probably will be recalled tonight if no trace of the lost plane is found today. It is six days since the flyers left Roosevelt Field, N. Y., for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, on the first leg of their attempted trans-Atlantic flight.

Reports that inhabitants of Newfoundland heard the sound of an airplane motor and intercepted messages from the Dawn near Harbor Grace are generally discounted here. Wireless stations in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia have received no response to signals broadcast to the Dawn.

Motion Pictures of Phone Directories Shown.

Motion pictures dealing with the compiling and printing of telephone directories, were featured at today's luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club in the new Travelers' hotel grill. The pictures were shown through the courtesy of Frank Swaney, commercial manager of the East Liverpool Bell Telephone office.

Swaney also discussed the progress of road improvement in East Liverpool and vicinity and touched upon the movement sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce for the establishment of an airport in the southern part of the county.

Fifty members attended the meeting, presided over by Dr. W. A. Hobbs. Dr. Howard Matthews, Chester dentist, was welcomed as a new member. Horace singing was led by Prof. Hugh Laughlin.

The president-elect, Rev. B. R. Johnston, told of meeting Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, when she stopped in Indianapolis on her way to Mexico to meet her son, Col. Charles Lindbergh, last week. R. C. Hedderston also told of meeting the flying ace at a Kiwanis district meeting in the east several months ago.

Next week's session of the club will be held at night instead of noon. Officers will be installed at this meeting.

OKLAHOMA SENATE IN SECRET MEET

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 29.—After a caucus beginning at 4 a. m., and continuing until 9 o'clock today, the Oklahoma senate ordered break fast sent to its secret meeting place in a hotel and announced that it would resolve itself in to a court of impeachment immediately and resume consideration of the charges against Governor Henry S. Johnston.

The early morning caucus was called in the fear that Governor Johnston was about to declare martial law throughout the state and order a larger national guard force into service to suppress the self-convened legislative session, which is attempting to prosecute charges against the executive and other officials.

HATBOX FIELD, Muskogee, Okla., Dec. 29.—Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh's plane took off for St. Louis at 11:34 o'clock today. She expects to arrive in St. Louis between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon.

THE BUCKEYE NEWS

NO. 51. DECEMBER 29, 1927. VOL. 4.

Another year coming around the bend!

We wish we could tell all you East Liverpool people how much we appreciate the kindnesses you have shown us during the past year. But we can't begin to express it. You have been good to us, possibly better than we deserve, but we have tried hard to merit your patronage and we sincerely hope we have pleased you. Running a lumber business isn't all sunshine and roses. We have our troubles just the same as anybody else, and sometimes we think we have more than anybody else. But we can look back over the past year and recall a lot of mighty pleasant associations that more than compensate for the troubles we have had.

As we approach the New Year, we wish you all the joy and happiness in the world. We hope Prosperity will tag around after you like a friendly dog and that 1928 will bring you 365 days of genuine happiness and contentment.

We have faith to believe that the coming year will be a prosperous one in the particular section of the country. We don't believe there is any community that offers greater opportunities for success than right here in East Liverpool. It's simply up to us to find these opportunities and develop them.

So, let's make it a big year for everybody.

We're going to help all we possibly can by giving a better service than we've ever given before.

Other merchants in East Liverpool are making similar resolutions. We know because we've talked to them.

Let's make the old town hum. What do you say?

Marriage License.

Melvin K. Bartolotto of Washington, a railroad fireman, and Miss Margaret A. Simpson of Salem, a stenographer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Simpson, have obtained a marriage license. They are to be married by Rev. Collier.

He turned back to his work, apparently having forgotten Shannon's presence. The big man looked at him uncertainly, but he could not mistake the gesture of dismissal. He rose, stared, and then shuffled from the room.

He did not pass through Kathleen's office on the way out. Whispering Willie Weaver saw him and nodded, but Todd did not even return the greeting of the big, bald-headed man. He made his way to the elevator, was dropped to the ground floor, and then moved slowly and heavily to the little municipal park which jeweled the center of the city. There, on a harsh, uncomfortable bench, Todd Shannon lighted his pipe and set himself to the very unusual and painful labor of thinking.

It did not occur to his simple, trusting mind that there could have been any ulterior motive actuating John Carmody. And never would he have suspected that Carmody was insanely jealous of Kathleen's love for Bob Terry.

Shannon did not think of Carmody in that way; he saw the hatchet-faced attorney only as a brain, as a great driving power in whose life there was not time for, or thought of, women. Besides, Carmody was married—and that in itself precluded all possibility of anything between himself and Kathleen.

Carmody had worked with Machiavellian cleverness. He virtually had turned his problem over to this convict who loved both Terry and Kathleen. He counted on the fact that Todd would certainly blunder, and in blundering, help Carmody with Kathleen.

For one thing, it was certain that Todd, in his lumbering way, would talk to both Kathleen and Bob. That, in itself, would help. Carmody was not sure that each recognized the situation. In case that were true, he wished Kathleen to become jealous, and he wished Terry to be made aware of the possibility of a marriage with Lois Borden. He figured that such a prospect would dazzle the young man whose world had been turned topsy-turvy and then upside down again. He planned to bewilder Terry and to dazzle him, while all the time he, himself, could sit back and watch the counterplay. Eliminate Terry definitely from Kathleen's life, and Carmody knew that she would turn to some one for sympathy and understanding. Perhaps the inevitable and bitter reaction might send her to his hungry and lecherous arms. Perhaps—John Carmody was well satisfied. He had worked cleverly, and there was one other bludgeon of disaster which was nearly ready for the wielding. Nothing mattered to him—life or happiness or justice—provided he attained his ends. It was his tendon of Achilles, this weakness for women which had centered flamingly on Kathleen Shannon.

And Todd Shannon was doing precisely what Carmody had known he would do. He was wrestling with a problem which was too big for him. It was troublesome and it was subtle. Shannon wasn't the sort of a man who could reduce a thing to its elements. He couldn't think silently. He felt the need for talk.

But one thing stood out with vivid clarity; Carmody was speaking the truth, and disaster was imminent. Todd had been very happy since coming from the penitentiary. He felt like a man who has returned to his children. He had experienced his moment of greatest happiness when they told him of their engagement.

"Aw, hell!" Todd was frankly disgusted. "Women in love gimme a pain. Even you."

He felt like a man who has returned to his children. He had experienced his moment of greatest happiness when they told him of their engagement.

"Aw, hell!" Todd was frankly disgusted. "Women in love gimme a pain. Even you."

would do. He was wrestling with a problem which was too big for him. It was troublesome and it was subtle. Shannon wasn't the sort of a man who could reduce a thing to its elements. He couldn't think silently. He felt the need for talk.

But one thing stood out with vivid clarity; Carmody was speaking the truth, and disaster was imminent. Todd had been very happy since coming from the penitentiary. He felt like a man who has returned to his children. He had experienced his moment of greatest happiness when they told him of their engagement.

He accepted their marriage as a certainty—until this moment.

He dreaded the effect on Kathleen should Bob permit himself to fall in love with Lois. He didn't know what he was going to do, but he unconsciously had hit upon the single element in the situation which would tend to make marriage between Lois and Bob Terry impossible.

"Seems like to me," Todd told himself, "that if Bob was ever going to hated Todd, as he glimpsed her almost hysterical delight. But on the nights when Bob did not appear Kathleen sat with folded hands. Occasionally she pretended to read, but Todd noticed that no pages were turned. There was a brooding light in her deep black eyes. Once he spoke with her.

"What's eating on you, Kathleen?"

"Nothing, Uncle Todd."

"Aw! come now—"

"Really, I mean that."

"Bob?" he queried bluntly.

She flashed him a startled glance. What made you ask that?"

"Oh! Nothing."

"Something did." She was keyed to a high nervous tension. "What have you noticed?"

"About the kid? Well, he's kinder perk' up a bit. And by the same token—he's gettin' soft."

"In what way?"

"Gosh! Kathleen—I don't know. I never was no hand to understand a lot about people. Taint what way, it's how he shows it. Take Peter Borden, for instance: Bob didn't used to think of nothin' but gettin' even with him. Now, he ain't so keen about it."

"I argued him away from that." Her voice was suddenly colorless.

"All hell couldn't have argued him out of it, the way he felt the day they let him out."

"Things are different." She swept him with her eyes. "You haven't thought anything else?"

"Well, yes. Kind of."

"What?"

"Ain't no use worryin' you."

"Tell me!" She stamped her foot imperiously.

"If you ain't noticed—Maybe you have, though."

"What?"

"Bob ain't by any chance gittin' too sweet on Miss Borden, is he?"

"What makes you think he is?"

"Now listen, Kathleen—I don't say nothin' like that. I said 'Was he.' It'd be durned unfortunate if he did."

"Why?"

"She ain't his type. Specially now. There ain't no gettin' around the fact that Bob has been three years in the pen, and I happen to know something about what those three years were. I was there—every day—wiltin' him. Maybe if he hadn't ever gone, he could have fitted into his life, but there's somethin' put into a man when he's been a convict that don't ever come out."

"If she loved him, they'd be happy."

"No, they wouldn't. That's all rot." He looked closely at Kathleen. "Why don't you up and marry the lad, Kathleen? You're the girl for him—let Miss Borden."

"I'm not for him if he don't want me. And I'd never try to sweep him from his feet."

"Aw, hell!" Todd was frankly disgusted. "Women in love gimme a pain. Even you."

He was clumsily clever enough to dissemble, but he took Kathleen's worries on his own shoulders with the result that two evenings later he went walking with Bob Terry.

They strolled through the city park, the lumbering, gigantic figure of Todd Shannon and the smaller one of Bob Terry. Bob was curious. He feared that Todd was in trouble; the big man's eyes were filled with a fear that Bob did not like, and he feared that Todd had succumbed to an innate

IS THERE NO RELIEF FROM SKIN TORTURE?

Must I Continue to Suffer the Unbearable Itching?

Are you one of those unfortunates who are going through life suffering with a skin disease, making you uncomfortable, making you less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in many forms of skin disease. Thousands of letters of gratitude prove its worth.

"I feel so happy for what S.S.S. has done for me that I want others to know about it. I suffered twenty long years from eczema. At times the itching was unbearable. During that time, I used all kinds of salves without receiving any real benefit. After taking six bottles of S.S.S., I was cured of this dreadful disease. I recommend S.S.S. to anyone suffering from eczema, because I can not praise it enough for what it has done for me." Cleophas Forte, Soldiers and Sailors Home, Quincy, Ill.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

ELKS TO FACE SALEM QUINT HERE TONIGHT

North Countians' 63 to 47 Victory Over Lisbon Indicates Stiff Battle for Local County League Entry.

If the performance of the Salem county league team against Lisbon last night is a true indication of the power of the north countians, the East Liverpool Elks tonight will have their hands full when they take on George Seeds' crew at the high school court here in their initial meeting of the campaign.

The Althouse Studebakers outscored a pair of counters from the free line for a grand total of 30 points—which is grand.

Salem, opening their season last Saturday night, had the misfortune to buck the strong Damascus Quakers, but, in losing by a small margin, indicated that the ability was there and needed only to be developed by a few games to permit the individual players to work into some semblance of team performance.

Rates Best Pugs In All Divisions

Sport Expert Classifies Fighters on Year's Showing.

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—In attempting to rate the ten best boxers in each of the eight standard divisions and the junior welterweight and lightweight classes on the basis of their performances in 1927, I have endeavored to weigh competitive performance, willingness to meet all comers, improvement wrought by the experience that comes with industrious pursuit of matches and restraint in the practice of "picking spots."

Several champions do practically all of their fighting in the next higher division to the one in which they hold title. Thus several names appear in different classes but the ratings change with the elasticity of poundage.

The late Tiger Flowers is entitled to a high mark among the middleweights and a place among the light heavyweights but his name has been omitted from most of the list and will be from this one.

Jack Delaney, while ranking high among the light heavyweights, is well down in the heavyweight list because he has not been active in the top division. George Godfrey defies close rating because he has been forced to meet inferior opponents. The welterweight and lightweight divisions are overlapping to a confusing degree, as are the junior lightweights and featherweights, the bantams and featherweights.

Bud Taylor remains champion of a poor class of bantams and so mingles with featherweights. His old bantam rival, Tony Canzoneri, is now an avowed featherweight.

Another bantam who always gave Taylor trouble is Bushy Graham. We list Graham, although he has been idle since last February by decree of the New York Boxing Commission. He accomplished nothing this year, yet he deserves a spot.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Young Griffo, old-time lightweight boxer, proved that his cleverness did not lie wholly within the squared circle. Griffo, supposed to be a pauper, had gathered $1,800 through the generosity of his friends, a sum more than sufficient to pay his funeral expenses. Tex Rickard, who spent $783 providing for the burial of Griffo, has filed a claim for that amount, and the woman who sheltered him for years has filed on the balance.

Sport Review of 1927

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

Now We Come to the End—December

SPORT REVIEW MOST VALUABLE ? ? ? PORT fans faced December and another turkey day with a feeling of having over-indulged in sport turkey. Over 30,000 of them journeyed to Atlanta, Ga., however, to watch Georgia's "wonder and dream" team go down to defeat mainly through its own ambitions in its closing game with Georgia Tech.

The Golden Tornado, trounced by Notre Dame, was given but an outside chance by outside critics, but it swept the champions of the south off their feet, winning 12 to 0.

The baseball stove league was given its first big "chaw" when Paul Waner, brilliant young Pirate outfielder, was chosen the most valuable player to his team in the National league. And oddly enough one of the most formidable contenders for this honor next year may be his little brother Lloyd, who played on the outfield with him.

Roger Peckinpaugh, one of the game's greatest shortstops and headiest players, returned to his home town of Cleveland as manager of the Cleveland club under its new owners. Peckinpaugh was disposed of as a youngster by the Cleveland club because he couldn't hit, only to become one of the game's most dangerous hitters with the Yankees and later to star with Washington and then serve a term with the White Sox.

The middle of the month, saw Harry Rice and Elam Van Gilder, outfielder and pitcher respectively, with the St. Louis Browns, traded to Detroit for First Baseman Lou Blue and Outfielder Heinie Manush. George Sisler, Brown first baseman, and at one time the only man qualified to carry the title of "Second Ty Cobb," was sold to Washington.

The later days of the month saw the athletic officials of the Army and Navy at loggerheads over the Navy's action in putting into effect a three-year eligibility rule, which automatically bars men who have played three years on college teams before entering the service and shortens their careers on athletic teams at Annapolis in proportion to the years they have played previously.

Many of the outstanding football stars of the east headed west to participate in the charity game promoted by the Shriners at Berkeley, Cal., Dec. 26. And the University of Pittsburgh and Stanford prepared to lock horns in an inter-sectional game to top off the year.

Also found Tex Rickard hard put for heavyweights with which to drum up interest in another big battle. It would take more than a long count to make most of the battles he could stage the least bit interesting. The two he had at Chicago just about make up the list whether or not you like either of them.

Santa Claus brought back to Jake Schaefer the 18.2 balk line billiard championship he had held in 1921 and again in 1925. In the closing days of the month Jake Jr. defeated Welker Cochran, defending champion, 1,500 to 1,304.

When the Japanese fleet was recently reviewed for the first time by the present Emperor, and for the second time in history, 172 vessels took part, in contrast to 122 in the last previous review in 1920.

Serial thrillers in vogue in this country 10 years ago are popular in motion picture theaters of Persia.

Smaller Tax May Lure Tex Over Border

Windsor, Ont., Mentioned for Championship Affair.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Wot, ho! for Windsor, Ont., the land of King George? and the imperial party, God save them both.

Having plenty of time on their hands and other people's money to spend, the boys sat themselves down beside T. Rickard today and sent the next heavyweight championship fight to Windsor, a town of 50,000 just across the border from Detroit and within easy access of Toronto, Chicago and the middle west in general.

A comparatively small town, it seems, but with a large floating population, meaning that they walk in and probably float out, meantime floating an occasional loan, there being no less than three race tracks in the vicinity. Loan-lending, therefore, might be taken to be one of the necessities of life, like a loaf of bread or maybe the last two steps on a ladder.

Anyhow, T. Rickard had a good story and he told it well. The synopsis of the plot was simply this: In Canada, the government tax on prize fights, a term translated from the vulgarian, is only two per cent. In New York, if a bill before congress passes, the government and states taxes will total thirty per cent. In Chicago, they will total thirty-five per cent.

Mr. Rickard allowed that he cared rather deeply for that two per cent tax. He neglected to say anything about that four per cent beer but, then, Mr. Rickard is a polished gentleman of the world and avoids the obvious whenever possible.

It was the first time that Rickard had had an opportunity to speak in public about the matter. Previously, he had dropped a diplomatic hint, here and there, of his desire to elevate the Canadians with one of these annual spectacles but apparently members of boxing commissions in Illinois and New York had been looking carefully at their finger nail. So this time he did his hinting with a cheer leader's megaphone.

Of course, boxing commission members have nothing to do with what happens in congress, although some of them seem to be ideally suited for the place. But commissioners do read the sport news and maybe legislators do not. So he dropped his idea where he thought it would do the most good, meantime hoping for a perfect relay on the throw to the plate.

Perhaps I wronged Mr. Rickard's motives. It may be that he pines for new fields to defertize and that the good old dominion is ripe for a harvest. Windsor's accessibility to Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and the other big towns of the middle west doesn't make it a bad bet and, when you get to thinking it over, thirty per cent taxes and two per cent beer aren't quite the attraction they might be.

FAVOR CANZONERI TO LICK TAYLOR

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Tony Canzoneri rules 7 to 5 favorite to defeat Bud Taylor in their scheduled ten-round bout here tomorrow night.

Eddie Long, Bud's manager, informed Tex Rickard that he will be glad to match Taylor with Benny Bass for the featherweight championship if he defeats Canzoneri, and will also entertain a proposition to close a match with either Kid Francis or Archie Bell for the bantam title.

Big Ten Opens Curt Warfare

Wolverines, Last Year's Champions, Loom Strong in Present Campaign With Veteran Stars on Job Again

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—That rumbling you now hear coming out of the middle west is not an echo of Chicago's gangland warfare, but merely the thump of feet upon the gymnasium floors as the 1927-28 basketball season begins.

The midwest takes its basketball seriously. Just like the Englishman does its afternoon tea. Every college and university, no matter how small or large, has its cage crew which has a huge following and can be depended upon to make a splendid showing during the season.

Foremost among the not combinations of the midwest are those of the western conference. Annually there is a close race for the championship and one and two-point victories and overtime games are numerous.

Always before the start of the regular Big Ten schedule the conference quintets meet up with the leading non-conference teams of the section. Frequently they are pushed to the limit and often beaten, but, all in all, the championship conference five can stand out as the cream of the midwest.

Schedule Under Way.
Big Ten teams already have started their schedules. December, especially during the holiday season, finds the charts crisscrossed with a raft of non-conference tilts. The games are far from the warm-up variety, and every opponent is to be feared. The early games test the real caliber of the Big Ten quintets and their results indicate just how they will fare when they face other conference siege guns in January.

The Michigan university team of six-footers that won the conference title by a one-game margin last year bids fair to be right up there when the 1927-28 struggle ends. The Wolverines, a powerful scoring machine, have the same offensive trio that led them to victory last year.

There is Benny Oosterbaan, Harrison and McCoy, a passing combination that set the pace in Big Ten cage last year. The Oosterbaan of gridiron fame is equally noted on the hardwood for his deadly shooting at close range. Harrison is one of the conference's best floor men and his ability to feed the ball to Benny is always a decided pain to the Wolverine opponents.

Purdue looms next to the Wolverines, or on a par, as the strongest title contender. Purdue tied with Indiana last year for second place, just one contest behind Michigan. Both Purdue and Indiana defeated the Wolverines, the only games dropped by the champions.

Purdue Has Eight Vets.
Purdue has eight veterans on the floor this year, including five letter-men. Outstanding is Wilbur Cummings, who at center was high scorer in the conference last season. Captain Babe Wheeler and Wilson, the main center behind Cummings, are other lettermen. Cummings, who performed freely last year as regular, promising material is also to be had from among the sophomores. Recruits from star Indiana high school teams, which by the way, means a lot in Indiana.

Among the most likely of the youngsters is "Stretch" Murphy, who stands six feet seven inches in his socks, and is the tallest man to ever don an Old Gold and Black uniform. Ralph Welch, Purdue's Texas gridiron hero of last fall, is also a possibility. Coach Everett Dean must build an entirely new combination at Indiana. The second place five, winning trio of last year was wrecked by graduation.

Knicker and Sibley going out last June and Becker will be eligible for only four conference games, as he leaves college in January.

Iowa has made an impressive early start, but just what the Hawkeyes will do this season remains to be seen. Iowa was the stumbling block in Purdue's path to the championship last year, defeating them twice. This was credited to Iowa's stellar defense, but both of the star Hawkeye guards, Hogan and McConnell, passed into alumni ranks last June.

Scholastic difficulties appear to have taken the glimmer of Wisconsin's bright hopes with three six-foot center candidates on the sidelines wrestling with scholastic difficulties. Kowalczyk, center last year, and Miller, giant forward, failed to pass exams, and Tenhagen, alternate pivot man, is reported in trouble with his professors.

Illini Unknown Quantity.
Illinois has nothing on paper, but the Illini has a habit of turning out dark horse net teams, just like they do in football. Daugherty, the main squeeze in the Illini lineup last season, will be missing this year. Illinois is not the only one to miss the brilliance of a star this season, as Ohio State will be without the service of Hunt, second high scorer last year. His absence will no doubt be sadly lamented by the Buckeyes, who must make a rapid start to gain fame on the hardwood this season.

If Chicago bolsters up an offense, the Maroons should rate highly, as they have a whole of a defense, Chicago still has its husky guards, but is lacking on the scoring end of the game. Minnesota and Northwestern, who tied for cellar honors last year, should flash a little more form this season, but they cannot seriously be considered as capable of causing much of a stir inside the Big Ten.

Sportraits

AL DEVORMER, who worked his way back to the majors last year when he was picked up by the Giants after he had hit 359 for Louisville, was released to Toledo because of his inability to connect with the hooks of National League pitchers.

Devormer was a Yankee catcher about six years ago but was traded to Boston who later sent him to Mobile. He escaped to Louisville where he became one of the heaviest hitters in the American Association.

Ask Reduction Of Committee On Grid Rules

Western Insurgents Seek Representative Group.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Leaders of western football plan to challenge the east's domination of the football rules committee today at the annual meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic association. The insurgents will propose that the committee be reduced from twelve members to ten, and that the east's influence on the important committee be curbed by the selection of the ten from different sections of the country.

Although a hot fight is predicted, it is believed that the drastic changes proposed will not be adopted. Advocates of the plan declare that it will result in a uniform interpretation of football rules, which at present are interpreted differently by officials throughout the country.

The N. C. A. A. today probably will affiliate with the American Olympic committee, which will help to effect peace in the American Olympic association and enable the United States to enter the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam with the National Amateur Athletic Federation and the Amateur Athletic Union, which controls the American Olympic association, was healed yesterday by the action of the M. A. A. F. in voting to support the Olympic program and to rejoin the American Olympic association.

Cooperation between these organizations is expected to aid in the raising of the $400,000 Olympic fund to send the American team to Holland.

While the drift toward the city continues in the United States, evidences have been discovered that the drift in England may be turning the other way. At all events the question has been raised as the result of the report of the Development Commissioners. "In the case of a large number of villages," they declare, "the argument that the attraction of the towns is irresistible no longer applies with the same force. In the winter evenings there are dances, concerts, dramatic performances, lectures, and other entertainments, and in the summer the country has its own attractions which the towns cannot compete."

Los Angeles Police Not
Misled by Apparent
Calm.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 29.—Los Angeles officials are not to be misled by the apparent calm that settled over the city with the jailing of William Edward Hickman, confessed kidnaper and slayer of little Marion Parker, it was announced today. The iron guard will be maintained with ceaseless vigilance.

PAZO OINTMENT

gon, where he was captured, he was hailed before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy to answer the murder and kidnapping indictments. The case was put over pending arrival from Kansas City of Attorney Jerome Walsh, who will represent the young slayer.

Hickman has declared he will stand by his confession and plead guilty, irrespective of what advice may be given him by his attorney.

Officials here take small stock in such declarations, however. They will show small surprise if an insanity defense is advanced.

Fright Killed Girl.

County Autopsy-Surgeon Wagner reported to Coroner Nance his opinion that strangulation was not the primary cause of the death of the Parker girl. Examination of the body gave no particular indications of this, he said.

He expressed his personal belief that fright had killed the child, that her heart had stopped when, upon Hickman placing the towel around her neck, she realized what was going to happen to her.

The Parker girl, Wagner said, was a very nervous child, and the agonies of her captivity had worn terribly upon her.

Hickman today was quoted as saying he was quite willing to repeat the details of the crime to Perry M. Parker, father of the victim.

In a short talk with newspapermen at the jail, Hickman said:

"There's three things I want.

"I want to talk to Marion Parker's father. I want his forgiveness for this thing I did to him.

"I want to hear from my mother, too.

"And I want a fair trial. Plead guilty? Oh, yes, I'll plead guilty, but there'll probably be some kind of a trial, I guess."

The youthful murderer declared he had already "paid many times" for his crime.

Dr. T. J. Logan Opens Revival Here Jan. 8

Prayer of Baptist Church
Pastor for Irish Preacher is Answered.

Dr. Thomas J. Logan, Scotch-Irish evangelist, will conduct a two weeks' series of revival meetings in the First Baptist church, beginning Sunday, January 8, and closing Sunday, January 22.

Several weeks ago Rev. A. H. O'Brien claims that he prayed that an Irish preacher be sent him for revival meetings early in the year.

About two weeks later Rev. Mr. Logan appeared at his home, introducing himself as an evangelist from the Emerald Isle. He said that he was passing through East Liverpool on his way from Carrollton and noticing Rev. Mr. O'Brien's name in the telephone directory learned upon inquiry that he was a Baptist minister. The two had never heard of each other.

Rev. Mr. Logan told the story of his conversation to Rev. Mr. O'Brien and how his great grandfather had been beheaded because of his religious conviction. Eight years ago he came to the United States where he secured his master's degree at Princeton university. He then returned to Ireland and Scotland where he preached.

He is a veteran of the World War, having been gassed several times. Recently he has held successful meetings in Carnegie hall at Pittsburgh.

Co-operative societies in Switzerland are growing.

MISS RALSTON AT CERAMIC

"Figures Don't Lie"
is Wholesome Entertainment.

If you like good wholesome entertainment that keeps you laughing throughout the evening and then sends you home with a satisfied glow don't fail to see Edward Sutherland's Paramount picture starring Esther Ralston "Figures Don't Lie" now at the Ceramic theatre.

It is a type of picture there should be more of. It doesn't claim to be an epic or to portray history making events. It is just a charming human story that makes you feel good all over.

Esther Ralston as a private secretary is altogether lovely and it isn't at all hard to see why Richard Arlen, who works in the same office, falls in love with her. Miss Ralston wears beautiful but simple costumes that are apt to set new styles for business girls. She is strikingly beautiful in her bathing costumes in the beach scene that features one of the exciting parts of the picture.

Richard Arlen portrays a lovable

GET 1928 TAGS, SHERIFF WARNS

"All motorists who operate their cars on and after January 1 next, without displaying 1928 license plates will be immediately picked up and taken before magistrates," Sheriff George Wright warned today.

"There will be no extension of time granted for the purchase of plates, and the law is very clear on this subject," the sheriff said.

"This office will have a number of extra men patrolling the roads, and we will also cooperate with all city and village authorities in making arrests."

"We propose to enforce the law, as requested by the state authorities."

type of irrepressible youth who won't take "no" for an answer.

Ford Sterling never had a better laugh producing role than that of "Howdy" Jones, absent minded business man and he realizes its full possibilities. Blanche Payson is a scream as the jealous wife. Doris Hill, whose ability in leading roles has often been demonstrated, is charming and convincing as Mamie, the girl friend of Miss Ralston.

The Review-Tribune Offers Booklet On the Constitution

The Constitution is the Bible of the Government. It is the foundation of the rights and liberties of every American--young and old, rich and poor. In it we find an absolute guaranty of protection for life, liberty, and property rights.

The average citizen has no knowledge of the relation of the Constitution to his life and that of his children. He does not fully appreciate the absolute security he enjoys--the benefits and privileges that are his.

This knowledge can be obtained only through a study of this inspiring American document.

The Washington Bureau of this paper has for distribution a booklet containing the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence, and the Articles of Confederation. Send for your copy today. Enclose four cents in stamps for return postage and handling.
